Illinois Oil & Gas Industry Cleans up Oil Sites in Crawford County

The Illinois Petroleum Resources Board (IPRB) contracted with Chris Brown Enterprises to remediate four old oil sites located in Crawford County, Illinois and restore the land for useful purposes.

Chris Brown Enterprises was responsible for removing and properly disposing of several 210 barrel steel tanks, steel separators, steel substructures, and walkway, debris, piping, etc., from each site location. Also included was the disposal of tank liquids and bottom sediments in accordance with the Illinois Oil and Gas Act and all other applicable state and federal statutes.

The IPRB is aggressively remediating abandoned well sites in its environmental stewardship effort. It is one of the primary goals of the IPRB, which is voluntarily funded by oil and gas producers and royalty owners, to be environmentally responsible.
